Graham Gund Associates is a design firm located in Cambridge, MA. In its ten year existence the firm has produced a wide variety of critically acclaimed and award-winning buildings.

Every Graham Gund Associates project has been recognized by peers, and the general public as well, for its high quality of design. Every project completed by the office has been published in a professional journal. The firm has also won an AIA Honor Award for the ICA, Progressive Architecture Design Award for Mt. Vernon Church Condominiums, and Architectural Record's Record Houses, and Record Interiors Awards as well as New England and Boston Society of Architects Awards.

Recent projects include: the renovation of a stable in Newton into a rehabilitation center for the Carroll Center for the Blind; the rehabilitation of the Perkins School on Saint Botolph Street into condominiums; the renovation and restoration of Wentworth-by-the-Sea, Portsmouth, New Hampshire; conversion of former courthouse buildings into office and arts related facilities in Bulfinch Square; a new studio building for the School of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston; and a new aquarium and museum for the Norwalk (Connecticut) Maritime Center.

Graham Gund will present the firm's work and design philosophies. Mr. Gund is a Trustee of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and a recent Trustee of the Institute of Contemporary Art in Boston and the Boston Society of Architects. He serves as a Director of the Society of Preservation of New England Antiquities, and as Overseer of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Annual Report of the President of the Boston Society of Architects

A. Anthony Tappé FAIA

As this year draws to a close, I am pleased to report to the Society on the events of the past year. It has been a memorable time for me and an eventful one for our Society.

I am indebted to the efforts and commitment of the many BSA members who have worked with me to make this past year a success.

My thanks also to Lowell Erickson and Kathy Tritchler who (in their usual able fashion) have kept the affairs of the Society moving. Melodye DeBeradinis has joined the staff as full-time bookkeeper for the Society and the Bookshop. We welcome her.

This past year, Laura Selm, Manager of the Bookshop, left to return to Indiana. Following a search for a Professional Manager, Ray Nadeau was selected. We have early indications of his effectiveness and expertise.

Each year builds upon the past. As a result of the efforts of the Executive Committee, the Society's Committees and the support of the Board, we have been able to implement several long discussed projects, these include:

The Boston Foundation for Architecture

The BSA Board has voted to establish a special public charitable Foundation with a Board of Directors to be composed of public and BSA members. The Foundation will undertake to support worthy activities and projects concerned with the built environment. Substantial funds already have been pledged and next year should see the Foundation in operation.

New Offices for the BSA

With the growth of our membership and increase in activities, we have outgrown our present offices. A lease has been signed for new quarters at 305 Newbury Street. They are located across from the BAC. In addition to offices for the staff there will be a meeting room for the committees and small Society functions.

Purchase of the Bookshop

After consideration of alternatives and careful analysis, the BSA Board has voted to purchase the building occupied by the Architectural Bookshop. With our present lease due to expire in a few years, and substantial building improvements already in place, this is a prudent course to pursue.

This past year has seen the establishment of several new programs for the membership. They are planned to provide increased opportunities for our members.

BSA Loeb Fellowship

To provide the opportunity for mid-career study for the membership, the Board has voted to support a BSA member, nominated and selected for participation in the Loeb Fellowship Program at Harvard. The cash stipend may be used to supplement the Fellowship and make it possible for more of our members to consider this educational program.

BSA Members' Exhibit

The BSA has many awards programs but the public has not had the opportunity to view the general work of all of the members of our Society. This coming year there will be an exhibit of the work of members of the BSA. All are invited to submit a project. The exhibit will open in April at the Architectural Show and then move to the ICA. Details of this exhibition will be announced in a succeeding Chapter Letter.

Annual Dinner Speaker Philip Johnson FAIA, George Nutter FAIA, AIA President/Elect and outgoing BSA President Tony Tappé FAIA during the evening.

The BSA has been active in representing the concerns of the Profession in Boston. Through the efforts of the Urban Design Committee, your Society has been involved in a variety of activities:

Mayoral Candidates Debates

Politically, the race for the Mayor's office presents the City with a major change for the first time in 16 years. The Boston Society of Architects has sponsored two Mayoral Candidates Debates. These have been televised and reported in the media. Our Society's efforts have helped make the development process an issue in the campaign.

Design Assistance Teams

The BSA has negotiated an agreement with the BRA to provide design assistance teams to review public project development guidelines and proposals. In addition, the BSA has been represented on special citizen review committees. Every effort is being made to expand our appropriate participation in the planning and development process in Boston. The advent of a new administration will present additional opportunities for the Society.

In addition, the Society has been represented on the Copley Square Centennial Committee, the St. James Avenue Civic Advisory Committee, the City of Boston Public Facilities Department Designer Selection Committee and the Massachusetts Convention Center Authority Designer Selection Panel.

The BSA has been asked by The Boston Globe to join in sponsoring a conference on the development of Boston. The BSA Board has voted to participate in this conference to be held in the Spring of 1984. We look forward to joining The Globe and the Educational Institutions in this public forum.

Each year the leadership of the Society represents the concerns of the membership on appropriate issues with the Commonwealth.

DCPO

This past year saw discussions and agreement on the part of the DCPO to eliminate fees as a consideration in the designer selection process.

Currently we are engaged in discussions with the DCPO regarding designer fee schedules with a view towards their revision to reflect realistic current costs.

OECD Housing Competition

The BSA Board's Resolution regarding the OECD competition has resulted in the appointment of a Select Committee to work with the OECD to review its designer selection procedures. The results of this Committee's work is expected shortly.

The major public service program of the Society is the Affiliate Program. The past year saw steady growth in membership and attendance. This year, the program is off to an excellent start. The membership is now over 400.

Last Spring, as an extension of our Affiliate Program, the BSA joined with the Museum of Fine Arts to sponsor a lecture series on Architecture. The response was gratifying and the series will be repeated in the Spring of 1984.

The yearly calendar of the Society includes a special number of events. This past year they have included the President's Reception, the Architects' Show and Awards Dinner, the Harleston Parker Award Reception and the New Members Reception. The Architectural Show was moved to the Park Plaza Hotel and was the largest yet, both in number of exhibitors and in attendance. This year's annual dinner will feature Phillip Johnson FAIA, as our guest speaker and will be attended by more than 250 persons.

I believe that the increase in Society activity has been partly responsible for the continuing growth of our membership. I am pleased to report the BSA now has more than 1,100 members in all categories. They are the life of the Society. Working with them has made this year most rewarding for me.

I join you in welcoming our incoming President, Tom Payette FAIA. He has been an exceptional Vice President. I look forward to his tenure as President.

AIA Announces "Energy in Architecture" Workshop in Boston

The AIA is planning a Level 4a workshop entitled "Microcomputer-based Energy Analysis" to be held in Boston on December 8. This new program, which builds upon what has been learned in past workshops on energy, demonstrates energy analysis programs based on the Buehrer analysis technique and others. Workshop materials include a comprehensive survey of dozens of microcomputer energy analysis tools which has been developed exclusively for this program and is not otherwise available.

The Level 4a workshop (which is not to be considered an introductory course in either microcomputers or energy analysis) will be taught by members of a distinguished energy faculty and will focus on demonstrating various methods one can use to conduct quick and comprehensive energy analysis in an office; providing access to microcomputer programs for many systems, and others.

For more information please call Donald Levy at 202-626-7458; to register by phone and reserve space please call Brenda Henderson at 202-626-7353.

Mayoral Debate

Several issues have developed over the past year which gave opportunities for our membership to become involved on a local, state or national level.

In January, we reported that Justice Stedman had granted the request made by the MSAA to prevent the Designer Selection Board from forwarding unranked lists of selected Designers for State funded projects. The DCPO was "enjoined from accoring contracts for designer services for any future project where the DSB did not rank the finalists in order of qualifications on the lists hereafter transmitted to the Deputy Commissioner of the DCPO." This action relieved what could become a process of fee bidding whereby a "selected" group of architects could be repeatedly negotiated with on the basis of fees rather than the State setting the fee and negotiating with the first ranked selected architect on the basis of services needed for the proper completion of the specific project.

Also in January, Peter Forbes as chairman of the BSA Ethics Committee requested and received support to pursue the formulation of a comprehensive code of professional responsibility. The intent being that a well drafted code would stand a good chance of getting the support of the Board of Registration of Architects.

The committee not only received financial support from the MSAA, but the New England Regional Council as well; furthermore, National AIA has been requested to financially support this effort and as of this printing is carrying a line item in its budget for this work. As Peter reported in the Summer edition of the newsletter, work has been proceeding and the first draft of The Boston Society of Architects, Ethics Committee, Model Code of Professional Conduct has just been circulated for initial review by the various executive committee members.

The EOCD design competition has premiated its list of selected architects for State funded housing projects over $500,000 for the next funding round. Much has been said both pro and con about the relative merits of such a process. It is regrettable that more of the concerned voices were not raised during the 18 month or more process the MSAA (through David Johnson and the BSA Housing Committee) went through negotiating with EOCD relative to methods and procedures for this event. David Johnson and his committee are to be commended for the time, effort and job well done on this difficult task. Looking to the future, the MSAA Task Force headed by John Miller will be exploring alternatives to the process by which architects may qualify for large State housing projects in the future funding rounds.

In August, we received notification that since the end of April 1983 the AIA's Political Action Committee has made contributions of $100 to U.S. Representative Joseph Moakley, $250 to U.S. Representative Barney Frank and $500 to U.S. Senator Paul Tsongas. These contributions are made in connection with the AIA's national legislative interests.

Finally, we must continue to encourage ourselves to become interested and active members of our respective chapters. Attend meetings, participate in the programs and seek a position on one of the committees. You will be surprised how fast room would be made for you and how welcome your ideas would be. It is through a visible and progressive chapter, functioning in your area, that your architectural community will be first — noticed, second — questioned, and later — looked to for responsible input on community and political decisions regarding your built environment.

Our collective strength lies in the public perception of our caring — caring how our town or city is developing, caring how business will succeed in the downtown and caring to be involved with local government. Get involved and you as an individual and the image of the profession as a whole will be enhanced.

Christmas at the Bookshop

The Architectural Bookshop invites all BSA members and affiliates to an evening of Christmas shopping on 8 December. The Bookshop will stay open until 8:30 that night. Special offers on books will be announced, with the regular discount of 10% still applying on others. The staff of The Bookshop will serve hot mulled wine and other treats for the occasion. The staff will also gift wrap purchases at no extra cost. And remember: The Bookshop carries a fine line of note cards, calendars, bookmarks, and appointment books, as well as children's books for the aspiring architect. And don't forget the BSA's Urban Design Competition posters. If the perfect gift is still to be found, The Bookshop offers gift certificates. The 10% discount applies to these also.

For more information, call The Bookshop at 262-2727. The Bookshop has made many friends since opening in 1979. We hope those friends will join us for the festivities on the 8th.

Author Receptions at The Bookshop

The Bookshop will sponsor two receptions in December. On the 7th we welcome Rad Dike and his new book Architectural Common Sense: Sun, Site, and Self. The book is a compilation of traditionally valuable facts about sun, site, and self integrated in a new proposal of divine proportions. It intends to give a solid understanding of the intangible forces that influence the aesthetics of architecture — the sun which is a measure of climate, the site which is a measure of the situation, and the self which is a measure of society. Rad Dike clearly explains how these forces serve as tools for designers and builders. You can then use the tools to develop and test designs for successful fulfillment of the requirements of these forces. Price: $15.45.

On the 14th The Bookshop welcomes Robert Grant Irving, author of the award winning Indian Summer: Lutyens, Baker, and Imperial Delhi. Winner of the Society of Architectural Historians Alice Davis Hitchcock Book Award, as "the most distinguished work of scholarship in the history of architecture by a North American scholar during the preceding two years", the book tells the story of the conception and creation of New Delhi, the grandest venture in planning and architecture in the history of the British Empire. The book is available in cloth and paperback, $45 and $15.95 respectively.

Both wine and cheese receptions will be held at The Bookshop from 5:30 to 7:00.

New Arrivals at The Bookshop

Man About Town: Frank Lloyd Wright in New York City, by Herbert Muschamp. MIT. 214 pp. $15.

To quote Brendan Gill: "The prankish title of this book hints at what its not in the least prankish contents will be describing, which is the adversarial love affair that persisted for half a century between Frank Lloyd Wright and New York City. Mr. Muschamp is no mere hero-worshiper; he is astringently witty in his perception of Wright's virtues and faults." This widely praised new addition to the Wright library is being hailed as the first completely new approach to Wright in years.

On the Rise: Architecture and Design in a Post Modern World, by Paul Goldenberger. NYTimes Books. 340 pp. $19.95.

Here, collected in book form for the first time, are the essays of the New York Times' architecture critic. They span the years 1974-1983, a time that has seen the greatest public interest in architecture and design in a generation — an interest these very essays helped to create. Included are reviews of the new A.T.&T. building, the East Building of the National Gallery, the JFK Memorial, the Vietnam Memorial, and others. And appraisals of Graves, Venturi, Meier, Pei, Johnson, and Roche.

Gold in Azure: One Thousand Years of Russian Architecture, by William Craft Brumfield. David R. Godine. 429 pp. $60.00

This sumptuous, elegant volume displays an artist's eye for the dramatic, an architect's sense of form, and the historian's rigor in the selection of materials. A book of exemplary scholarship, it is a colorful and comprehensive illustrated history of Russian monumental architecture for the expert and general reader. And, as with all books from David Godine, it is beautifully printed & bound. A truly fine gift.

To order any of the above, call The Bookshop. We will gladly wrap and mail your order if you like, with Best Wishes for the Holidays.

Boston Citizens Seminars

Future Boston: Planning and Designing a Livable City will be the topic of the next Boston College Citizen Seminar. The membership is cordially invited to attend this seminar which is being co-sponsored by Boston College and the BOSTON 2000 project of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce. The seminar will be held on Tuesday, December 6, at 3:30 p.m. in the Enterprise Room, 5th Floor, State Street Bank and Trust Co., 225 Franklin Street, Boston.

The panelists for the Seminar are well-known and respected professionals in planning and designing the urban environment who have been actively involved in development decision-making for cities across the nation, they are Richard Fleming, President and CEO, The Denver Partnership; Kevin Lynch, Principal, Carr Lynch Associates, Cambridge; and William Whyte, former Director, the Street Life Project, New York. The Moderator will be John LaWare, Chairman and CEO, Shawmut Bank of Boston, N.A.

At the conclusion of the Seminar, approximately 5:30 p.m., there will be a reception at the Downtown Club, 33rd Floor, to which all are invited.

For more information, please call 426-1250, ext. 35 or 36.

U. Mass. Building Authority/ DCPO In Jurisdictional Dispute

Tunney Lee has sent the following letter to Lowell Erickson alerting members to the following jurisdictional dispute:

Please be advised that the Division of Capital Planning and Operations (DCPO) and the Designer Selection Board (DSB) are currently involved in a jurisdictional dispute with the University of Massachusetts Building Authority (Authority). The basis of the dispute is that the DCPO and the DSB interpret relevant statutory law to place the Authority's building construction projects, including the designer selection procedures related to those projects, under DCPO and DSB jurisdiction. The Authority is contending that it can proceed to design and build projects without DCPO and DSB involvement.

DCPO is currently discussing possible methods of resolving the dispute with the Authority. I believe, however, that it is essential that designers be aware of the existence of the dispute and I suggest that they avoid being caught in the middle between DCPO and the Authority. Entering into a public design contract that is subsequently determined to have been illegally entered into could result in the contract being declared void, regardless of the good intentions of the parties to the contract.

Urban Design Citation Award

This year the Urban Design Citation Award is being given to the Back Bay Architectural Commission.

The presentation ceremony is being planned for Friday, December 9 from 6:00-8:00 p.m. at the Burrage Mansion, 314 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, now called the Boston Evening Medical Clinic.

In citing the Back Bay Architectural Commission, the committee wishes to emphasize that this citation is in recognition of a process which fosters interaction between specific interests concerned with urban change.

The citation will be commemorated by the fourth in a series of limited edition posters, available at the ceremonies.

Reservations at $10.00 each for refreshments. Cash bar available.

Please return the enclosed reply envelope to secure your attendance at the reception.

Computer Committee to be Formed

The BSA is establishing a Computer Applications Committee to serve as a resource for chapter members. The committee will be chaired by Crawley Cooper, AIA, a principal in Jung/Brannen Associates, Inc., and Director of the firm's computer operations.

One task of this committee will be to investigate the possibilities of establishing a comprehensive software exchange program. Members interested in suggesting other areas of focus or serving on this new committee are invited to contact Crawley at 482-2299.

The Board of Directors and Committee Chairs gather in Salisbury, New Hampshire for what has been a traditional Planning Retreat in October.

Health Care Facility Committee (HCFC) by Martha Bil Manevich, Chair

The agenda for the next 6 months is full with exciting ideas for increasing the visibility of the BSA through this committee's activities. They will vary from presentations on new technologies to guest speakers, case studies and workshops.

In preparation for the October '84 meeting of the AIA Committee on Architecture for Health we have set up a subcommittee headed by William S. Black which will coordinate the BSA/HCFC hosting activities.

We would like to expand our present committee membership to accomplish the objectives of BSA/HCFC visibility and participation in the Health Care field — If you are interested, please call the BSA office for more information.

The next meeting's agenda will be: Health Care Engineering Case Study: Mass. General Hospital December 15th at 5:00 p.m.

New Board of Director for S E A Consultants, Inc.

Mr. Richard P. DeCoste AIA has been elected to the Board of Directors at S E A Consultants Inc. Boston. Mr. DeCoste AIA, is also Architectural Officer of the firm. As Chief Architect, he has been instrumental in the recent expansion of the firm's Building Services Group.

1983 Harleston Parker Medal

The 1983 Harleston Parker Award Committee selected and the Annual Meeting voted the 1983 Medal to The John Hancock Tower by I. M. Pei and Partners.

The Committee's report in part stated

"It has been one of the truly seminal designs of modern architecture. It was the first and remains the best of an expanding family of reflective glazed towers which would be claimed to characterize the recent chapter of American Building. The tower is seen as a symbolic image, which has led to its frequent appearance on the covers of several recent books on architecture . . ."

"The Committee had no doubts that the tower is the most beautiful contemporary tower in Boston and probably in the entire United States — and that there is no recent skyscraper in any other American city which is aesthetically superior to the John Hancock Building.

The John Hancock Tower was the first and remains easily the best of the reflective glazed towers which characterize the latest chapter of American building. It is an elegant structure and a masterful piece of restrained design. It is a very strong aesthetic achievement and in this respect meets the donor's original requirements for "the most beautiful piece of architecture." The problems that plagued its construction were overcome and in no way affect its final achievement as a successful design and a truly elegant solution to high-rise building.

Members of the Committee were:
G. W. Terry Rankine FAIA, Chair,
Robert Brannen AIA, Nelson Chen AIA,
Maurice Finegold AIA, Gary Graham
AIA, Cynthia Howard AIA, Robert
Neiley AIA, Paul S. Oles AIA, Hugh
